STANFORD — All done.
The Lincoln County High School seniors ended their high school careers Friday night, walking across the stage and out the doors of their home for the past four years.

The 212 seniors, clad in royal blue and red caps and gowns, took their first steps into the post-high school world surrounded by friends and family during the 40th annual LCHS commencement exercises held in the Joe T. Eddleman Gymnasium.
The 2014 graduates were led in the commencement exercises by their class officers: Noah Thomas Hall, president; Madeline Jane Adams, vice-president; Dakota J. Roberts, secretary; Mary Taelor Walker-Owens, treasurer; and Maggie Elizabeth Taylor, reporter.
As class president, Hall was the first of three featured speakers for the program, and he wasn't ashamed to admit he took the stage for the final time with mixed emotions.

"I'm so nervous I can barely stand, and so excited I can barely stand still," he said. "We have aced classes that tested us, conquered the challenge of high school, and acquired a big achievement — we have come to the final day of our high school career."
Hall said that he felt honored to be "looking at the most unique class to ever graduate from Lincoln County High School," but asked the audience not to "start throwing rotten vegetables" at him for the statement.

News from Fairview Baptist Church

By Shelby Lakes

Bro. Jason Brown was guest speaker at Fairview on Sunday. He titled his sermon, "Why Are You Here?" Most should feel like we have a purpose, he asked. Without Jesus intervening, we are hopelessly lost. But through the love of Jesus, many can become righteous. God gave us an opportunity to be saved, and when we are, we are to do good works for God, Bro. Jason said. Maybe you need a new reason to be here, Bro. Jason said. There is a lost and dying world, and they need to know about Jesus, and that there is hope and victory. Ministry doesn't just mean being a pastor, Bro. Jason said. It could be that your ministry is to give a cup of water in Jesus' name. Your ministry is to do what God wants you to do, to edify the body of Christ. There is no greater peace, joy, or satisfaction than to surrender, Bro. Jason said. Getting rid of self and turning your self over to the savior is the hardest thing to do. If there is a breath left in your body, you have a purpose, Bro. Jason said, and it all revolves around Jesus Christ. Celebrating their birthdays are Georgia Brenda, Chris Shelton, Chasity Smith, James Cummins, Dave Rollins, Nick Baker, Teresa Gilpin and Jessica Parker. Celebrating anniversaries are Nick and Val Baker and Paul and Brenda Rice.

Highland Methodist Church news

Sunday, June 8, was a good day of worship at the Highland United Methodist Church. There was a report given concerning Bob Gourley who needs special prayers as he deals with his health condition. Requests were for Ellen Hunkins' children and grandchildren's father and grandfather, Mr. Alford, Alfred Harris Pence (stroke), Rev. Marion Snapp (stroke - Methodist minister), Harry Mellinger (facing a 10th cancer surgery), and an unspoken. Ellen Hunkins reported that she has a new great grandson, Cooper Ryan Allan. Too, we need to uplift Ellen and Ron in our prayers as they experience for the first time being Highland's representatives to the Kentucky Annual Conference this week. They seem to be very excited about this endeavor. Doris Scilley gave a short report on her grandson, Aaron Scilley concerning his high school graduation, his scholarships and awards. During his whole school years he has had only A's and beyond while also taking some college courses. He has a scholarship to Centre and will play baseball there. Those attending his graduation from this area were Rev. and Mrs. Don Scilley; his aunt and uncle, Dawn and Scot Cheetham and Dawn's son, Isaac Hughes, and great uncle and great aunt, Buddy and Frankie Young. Next Sunday the women will be in charge of the Father's Day service. There will be a special children's dedication, baptismal service; special songs; children singing; poetry; message and much more.

There will not be a special fellowship time afterwards as many fathers will be taken out for lunch. Frankie Young will be providing special gifts for all the men. The sermon came from Genesis 22:1-14 which is the beautiful story of Abraham's deep love and dedication to God which was the willingness to sacrifice his only son by Sarah, his beloved wife. A good fellowship was had by all after worship. A special feature was some pulled barbecue pork that had come from Aaron Scilley's graduation party. Not wishing to take anyone from their services or church, but if you do not attend anywhere, "any and all" are welcome at the Highland United Methodist Church each Sunday at 10 a.m. for Bible study and at 11 a.m. for worship.

Kentucky Court of Appeals Visits Lincoln

By Ben Kleppinger
ben@theinteriorjournal.com

STANFORD — A three-judge panel for the Kentucky Court of Appeals traveled to the Lincoln County Judicial Center Tuesday, where the judges heard arguments in a Fayette County civil case.

It was the first time in recent history that the Court of Appeals used Lincoln County facilities, Circuit Court Clerk Teresa Reed said.

The Court of Appeals is comprised of 14 judges who are split up into panels of three to hear cases. The panels travel around the state to hear cases — there is no permanent location for the court.

Judges Michael Caperton, Denise Clayton and Christopher Shea Nickell heard arguments from lawyers in the case "Beth Ann J. Kloiber v Daniel Kloiber Dynasty Trust," a civil case related to a divorce proceeding in Lexington.

The case concerns a trust formed in Delaware and how hundreds of millions of dollars in stock stored inside that trust might be divided up.

Beth Ann Kloiber is appealing a Fayette County Circuit Court ruling dismissing her case, which claimed "fraudulent conveyance of marital assets and breach of fiduciary duty," according to the Administrative Office of the Courts.

The proceedings began at approximately 2:45 p.m. and lasted for about one hour. The judges said they expect to have a ruling in approximately 60 days.

Summer premiere at Playhouse is light-hearted ‘whodunnit’

By Ben Kleppinger
ben@theinteriorjournal.com

There’s been a murder at Tex McKinney’s dude ranch and everyone wants to know the answer to a tough question: whodunnit?

But there’s an easier question for you to answer before you start analyzing the evidence: Should you go see the first play of the summer season at Pioneer Playhouse, “Whodunnit, Darling?”

Spoiler alert — the answer is yes.

The opening act of the Danville outdoor theater’s 65th season is a plot-driven comedy built on all the classic elements of murder mystery dinner theater, except you don’t have to do any of the acting.

“Whodunnit” is light-hearted and silly — as it must be to fully embrace the melodrama of its genre. It’s best enjoyed by not taking things too seriously and thoroughly suspending your disbelief.

If you can do that, you’ll get roped in and feel uniquely connected to the storyline as you attempt to piece together the evidence and solve the murder before the lead sleuth, Damocles Cole (Kentucky native J. Richey Nash) can figure it all out.

Unless, that is, the cartoonish sheriff Moose Lodge (Chris Kateff) can name the killer first.

Even though the plot line is the centerpiece of “Whodunnit,” there are laughs throughout the play — most courtesy of Moose and the previously mentioned dude-ranch owner, Tex McKinney (Playhouse vet Eben French Mastin).

Tex is a crotchety old cowboy quick to grab his guns and Moose is an exaggerated Barney-Fife-like character whose preference would be to throw everyone in the “pokey.”

Mastin and Kateff are both excellent at physical comedy and there’s plenty of that in both of their roles. You will likely find yourself experiencing the play vicariously through the eyes of Damocles — “Dam” to his friends — and Dam’s ex-wife Daphne Cole (Synge Maher), who may or may not have played a role in the murder.

Nash and Maher are both excellent in their lead roles and quickly endear themselves to the audience.

Nash is a guest star of sorts who has appeared in multiple national TV soap operas and recently released a baseball movie he starred in and directed, “Hitting the Cycle.” He will also be directing the next Playhouse offering, “Is He Dead?” which opens June 24.

While the audience may identify most strongly with Dam and Daphne, I personally found Tommy Delbert, Daphne’s boyfriend, to be a uniquely interesting character.

Tommy (Danville native Dylan Crow) is a drunk of largely questionable morals,

SO YOU KNOW

“Whodunnit, Darling?” is being performed at Pioneer Playhouse in Danville through June 21. Performances are nightly, Tuesday-Saturday beginning at 8:30 p.m. Dinner is available at the theater on performance nights at 7:30 p.m. Regular adult tickets are $16 for the play and $28 for the play and dinner. For more information or to reserve tickets, call Pioneer Playhouse toll-free at 866-597-5297.

but he is also completely self-aware and knows these things about himself. He apparently has no qualms about speaking with brutal honesty about himself and others, and he has many of the most insightful lines in the play.

Crow plays the role of Tommy with just the right amounts of honesty, suspicion, anger and mystery. You’ll be left guessing about Tommy’s real motives and allegiances right up until the end.

The other two characters — or should I say suspects — in the play are wealthy businessman Martin Lomax (Eric Hedlund) and his wife, seductress Vera Lomax (Erika Lee).

They are an unlikable and snobbish couple that you will likely take an immediate dislike to — but that doesn’t necessarily doom either one of them to being the murderer.

The keystone of a good murder mystery is the climactic reveal, and the reveal in “Whodunnit” doesn’t disappoint — it’s worthy of the build-up.

One of my favorite things about “Whodunnit” is how it makes the audience feel involved in the play without ever truly breaking the fourth wall.

Often, the dialogue that is happening on-stage will be nearly identical to the dialogue happening at the same time inside your head as you try to solve the murder.

This is a clever trick employed by the playwrights to both enthrall the audience members and help them keep track of the long list of facts and evidence that lead to the solution.

It also creates a thrilling, roller-coaster-ish feeling as you race to the finish against the on-stage characters. At times, you’ll pick up on something and get a step or two ahead; at other times, an on-stage character will clearly figure something out that you have yet to deduce.

It’s all intentionally crafted to make you feel like an accomplished detective — and leave you wondering at the puzzle, eagerly awaiting the reveal.

As directed by Playhouse Artistic Director Robby Henson, “Whodunnit, Darling?” is a cathartic experience and an excellent way to kick off another summer of theater at Pioneer Playhouse.

May Day in June

Last Thursday was June 5, but that didn’t stop McKinney Elementary School students from having a blast during May Day activities, including a staff vs. students basketball game, close to a dozen inflatables and rowdy games of kickball.

Four teachers also agreed to be splashed by water balloons — thrown by students — to complete a “cold water challenge,” a new fad where people are challenged to be doused with cold water prior to donating money.

The teachers — Shelley Rousey, Mitzi Curtis, Julie Hale and Tish Burns — donated money to the school’s PTO president, Stacey Clark, who is battling cancer.

An encouraging word A stabilizing influence

By Howard Coop

Since June 19, 1910, when the first observance was held in Spokane, Washington, the third Sunday in June has been observed as Father's Day. On Sunday, June 15, we will observe that day again, and in one way or another, we will pay respect to fathers and recognize the important contribution they make to our lives and to the society of which we are a part.

In the Judeo-Christian tradition that is our heritage. Fathers have, through the centuries, had a distinct role. They are responsible for nurturing their children and giving them the moral and ethical principles by which they are to live by teaching them by word and by example what is right and what is wrong. As a result, fathers assume primary responsibility for the conduct of their sons and daughters. This tradition of fatherly responsibility brings stability to the home and strength to the nation. For assuming this responsibility, good fathers are due the honor and respect we give them.

Recently, commentators have pointed out the decline in moral values and ethical standards in America. The reason they give for this decline is the breakdown of the home and the lack of fatherly influence. In an article entitled "Statistics on Fatherless Children in America," Wayne Parker points out some alarming facts: 63 percent of youth suicides are from fatherless homes, 85 percent of all children that exhibit behavioral disorders come from fatherless homes, 71 percent of all high school dropouts come from fatherless homes, 70 percent of all juveniles in state-operated institutions come from fatherless homes, and the likelihood that a young male will engage in criminal activity doubles if he is raised without a father and tripled if he lives in a neighborhood with a high concentration of single-parent families.

In an undeniable way, these statistics indicate the heavy responsibility that rests upon the shoulders of fathers. Fathers are, indeed, a stabilizing influence in human society, for their influence makes a tremendous difference; therefore good fathers deserve the honor bestowed upon them on Father's Day.

She was also preceded in death by siblings, Georgia Padgett, Willard Story, Harold Story, Selma Reynolds and Ray Story. News from Pleasant View Baptist Church

By Scena Ann Petrey

Vacation Bible School will be held June 16-20 from 6:30 to 9 p.m. Come join us for an exciting week of learning more about Jesus, making crafts, joining in with the recreation, and, of course, snacking! That starts on Monday evening and is for 3 year olds through 6th grade.

Pleasant View recognized their 2014 graduates with a breakfast for them and their families Sunday morning, June 8. Congratulations to the following: Shelby Morgan (LCHS), daughter of Shane and Tina Morgan; Shalya Smith (DCA), daughter of Todd and Jamie Smith; Rebecca Cook (Campbellsville University), daughter of John and Pam Cook; and Bro. Jamie Lawrence (LBTS), husband of Elisha and dad to Kaylee and Kellis Lawrence.

Bro. Matthew's message Sunday was "Defining Moments" with the text from Joshua 1:1-9. Bro. Matthew mentioned several defining moments in our country's history: 1776 with the signing of the Declaration of Independence; 1861 with the start of the Civil War; 1929 with the Great Depression; 1941 with the bombing of Pearl Harbor and the beginning of WWII for America; and 2001 with the bombing of the twin towers and the Pentagon just to name a few.

Just as America has had many defining moments, the Israelites did also. God delivered the Israelites out of bondage from Egypt to go to the Promised Land. They wandered 40 years in the wilderness because of lack of faith in God. Upon Moses' death, Joshua became the leader of the Israelites, and his first job was to lead them into the Promised Land.

We also have many defining moments in our lives. The big question is how will we respond to them? Bro. Matthew's message centered around three things we can do to make it through these defining moments. We must live in the character of God, live on mission, and live by faith.

God told Joshua to take the people into the Promised Land and trust in the Word of God (the Bible). We also need more than our own strength – more than our own understanding; we NEED Jesus!

We will have a fellowship on Sunday evening, June 22 at 6:30 at the shelter. The church will provide the chicken strips, bread, and drinks. Everyone is asked to bring a vegetable, salad, or dessert. Cakes/Pies are needed to be auctioned as well. The funds raised will go towards the youth's various trips/missions.

The senior adults will be taking a trip to the Pioneer

Playhouse on Thursday, June 12. They will dine at Cheddars; the bus will leave the church at 4:30 p.m.

On July 6, PVBC will have Freedom Sunday. Sunday school will start at 9 a.m. Worship in the shelter will follow at 10:15 with testimonies, color guard, special music, and the guest speaker will be Dale Rose, an evangelist from Wayne County. A community fellowship meal will follow at 11:30 a.m. Make plans to attend this wonderful service.

We are looking to procure addresses for long-term missionaries that you know so we can send encouraging letters to those who are overseas. If you know someone serving who would love to get some snail mail from the States, please see Rebecca Cook or Charlotte Abel.

Thought for the week: "Try to be a rainbow in someone's cloud." (Maya Angelou)

News from Stanford Nazarene Church

By Buford Edwards II

The mission at Stanford Nazarene Church is to share the gospel message of Jesus Christ to all the world and to be a place of healing and hope to all in need. Come as you are, Jesus will meet you there!

This past Sunday, Bro. Buford brought the message from 2 Samuel 10 on the subject “The Devil’s in the Details”.

On Sunday night, Bro. Buford continued the series on the Old Testament Feasts regarding the Feast of the First Fruits, taken from Leviticus 23 and 1 Corinthians 15.

Join us Wednesday nights at 7 p.m. for our “Book Club.” Right now the “Book Club” is engaging the Ashes to Fire series. This is an awesome series that led us through Lent, and Easter as we approach Pentecost. You don’t want to miss it. The youth have powerful services as well as our children. It’s a busy place on Wednesday, come check it out.

WE NEED YOUR HELP! The church is working hard on year two of the “Five Year Plan.” We are actively raising funds to purchase a church van and pay off the debt on the fellowship hall. If you would like to donate to the cause, you can drop off a donation at any service or even mail in a donation. Just remember to write “Five Year Plan,” somewhere (memo field of check or envelope of cash) in order for it to be properly designated.

The Men’s Group and Youth Group have entered into a joint venture to complete service projects in the community. If you are in need of any work done around your home that you are unable to complete, or know of any folks in need, please contact Bro. Robert Bowen or Bro. Dennis Hasty.

MARK YOUR CALENDARS: June 22 will be our Pack the Pew Sunday! Just like last year we will have a morning service and fellowship meal to follow. Last year we had 99 in attendance and our goal is to pack the church till the walls pop out. Please make plans to join us.

The youth are planning an outing to Kings Island on June 28. If you are interested, see Bro. Dennis Hasty for details. We will need adult drivers/chaperons. If you are willing to volunteer, let Bro. Dennis know. (Your admission to the park will be paid if you are an adult chaperon).

The ladies meet the first Tuesday of every month at 6 p.m. in the fellowship hall. Their next regular meeting will be Tuesday, July 1.

Vacation Bible School 2014 will be Saturday, July 19. Stay tuned for more details.

The Silent Auction and Concession Sale will be Saturday Aug. 2. We are in need of items for the auction and volunteers. Tax receipts will be provided upon request and all proceeds will go to the 5-Year plan. Begin gathering items now.

The church has an active food assistance program. If you know of anyone or have a need yourself, leave a message at the church.

Service times: We have an amazing variety of blended services. Each week we have “Schoolin” (Sunday school) beginning at 10 a.m., with worship services on Sunday at 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. Additionally, our “Book Club,” youth, and children all meet together on Wednesday nights at 7 p.m. The “Book Club” and children always meet at the church and the youth alternate between the church and fellowship hall each week.

For more information about our youth group and children's programs, email the directors by logging on to our website at www.stanfordchurchofthenazarene.com.

If you would like more information about our church and events, contact Pastor Buford Edwards at (606) 365-1260 or visit us on the web. Don’t forget to also “like” the Stanford Church of the Nazarene on Facebook to receive updates and an encouraging word.

Journalists around the word have died for doing their jobs

The dead do speak. They need no free speech protection — no government can forever silence their message. No dictator can prevent the living from taking notice. And no earthly authority can erase or demean their sacrifice.

On several occasions recently, we are reminded of the men and women who sacrificed their lives for the greater good of many.

There are news reports from France, and the beaches of Normandy, on the 70th anniversary, June 6, 1944 — D-Day — and of the survivors then and their dwindling numbers today. There are the televised images of the flowering of free expression in China 25 years ago, in 1989, when student-led demonstrations showed the power of speech, assembly and petition — and of an indelible news photo from June 9 of one man standing up to a tank in Beijing’s Tiananmen Square.

And on June 9, at the Newseum in Washington, D.C., we once again will be reminded that there are journalists from many nations, in many places, who risk their lives to gather and report information, and to offer informed opinion, so that “we” may know the news.

A number of international organizations, from the Committee to Protect Journalists, to Reporters Without Borders, to the International Press Institute and more, track and combat crimes against reporters, photographers and others who gather the news.

Those organizations also update regularly their lists of journalists who have been killed and imprisoned in a given year. This year, they report more than 20 journalists have been killed and more than 100 have been jailed. In 2013, as many as 77 journalists were killed, the groups say.

The Newseum’s Journalists Memorial — a gallery marked by soaring glass panels bearing more than 2,200 names dating back to 1837 — will add 10 representative names on June 9 to its long list. The memorial is intended to remind us of all of the deadly challenges facing journalists globally, from firefights to death squads funded by organized crime to kidnapping and execution by terrorists and political factions — of fatal wounds from shrapnel to death by bullets fired from speeding motorcycles to beatings with iron bars.

The stories from the Newseum’s biographies of this emblematic group are chilling testimonies to courage and commitment. Among those accounts:

- Killers were waiting for Akmednabi Akmednabiyev, editor for Novoye Delo newspaper in Russia, outside his home in the volatile republic of Dagestan. He was shot in the head at virtually the same spot where he survived an assassination attempt six months earlier.
- Helicopters circled overhead and clouds of tear gas filled Cairo streets as British cameraman Mick Deane — a 40-year veteran of reporting on war and world events — filmed a clash between security forces and supporters of former Egyptian President Mohammed Morsi. Deane was shot by a sniper.

• Philippines radio commentator Fernando Solijon, a relentless critic of government corruption, received an on-air death threat that “Your coffin’s already made” just hours before he was shot multiple times by gunmen who fled on a motorcycle.

Some weeks ago, at the annual White House Correspondents Dinner, President Obama said the event “reminds us that we really are lucky to live in a country where reporters get to give a head of state a hard time on a daily basis. ... But we also know that not every journalist, or photographer, or crew member is so fortunate, because even as we celebrate the free press tonight, our thoughts are with those in places around the globe like Ukraine, and Afghanistan, and Syria and Egypt, who risk everything — in some cases, even give their lives — to report the news.”

On rare occasion, death visits journalists in the United States. In a corner of the Newseum’s News Corporation News History Gallery sits a small white car with a buckled hood, a driver-side door flung open, and the floorboard peeled up into metal shards — the result of a 1976 bomb that fatally injured Arizona Republic reporter Don Bolles. He had been lured to a meeting with a source who offered information on local mobsters.

In the Newseum’s 9/11 Gallery, the battered cameras and personal items of William Biggart can be found. Biggart, a freelance news photographer, was killed in the terrorist attacks on the World Trade Center. Biggart had rushed to the scene shortly after hearing about the attacks. His body was recovered near those of several firefighters.

The First Amendment protects freedom of the press and of speech — and the ability of critics of the news media to both to point out legitimate shortcomings and imagined slights.

But that valuable exercise in “monitoring the monitors” ought rightly to pause briefly on June 9, when the world is again reminded that journalism is a profession in which many face danger each day — and in every year, some make the ultimate sacrifice.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Tourism funding should be restored

Dear Judge Adams,
It has come to my attention that Lincoln County Fiscal Court plans to eliminate the office of Lincoln County Tourism, which includes a salary for the director. The article in the June 4 edition of the Interior Journal states the allocation for the tourism program in the proposed FY 2014/2015 Budget has been slashed from $43,000 to $1,000. Having worked in the tourism industry for over thirty years, I can personally attest to the importance of a tourism office and a dedicated staff person working to market the community as a tourism destination.

Every community has something to offer the traveling public, but a successful tourism industry does not just happen — it must be made to happen. It requires strong leadership and proper planning. The key to a successful tourism program requires a dedicated, full-time executive director to make the industry grow. An active, experienced and knowledgeable person is extremely important, as the hands-on approach makes a lasting contribution to the economic stability of a community. The impact of tourism is real and the work of a tourism director helps to provide benefits such as increased employment, income, community pride and heritage.

Attracting tourists to Lincoln County is an on-going process and the Lincoln County Tourism works diligently to increase the number of visitors to the area. According to a report released by the Kentucky Department of Travel & Tourism in May of 2014, tourism added $11.2 million to the local economy during 2013. Tourism focuses on capturing market share and economic development from outside the area to benefit local citizens with jobs and increased revenues through community development. Every new dollar that comes into the community turns over 7 times.

Travel and tourism enhances the quality of life for a local community by providing jobs, bringing in tax dollars for improvement of services and infrastructure, and attracting facilities like restaurants, shops, festivals, and cultural and sporting venues that cater to both visitors and locals.

I strongly urge you to keep the Tourism Program active with Jamie Leigh employed as director. I’ve had the privilege of working with her for several years and can personally attest to her tireless dedication to Lincoln County’s tourism industry. Most importantly, she is genuine in her efforts to do the best job possible. Jamie’s professionalism, extensive knowledge and invaluable experience in and of the travel and tourism business are evident. Her work in Lincoln County has contributed to the county’s tourism growth.

Without a doubt, an adequately funded tourism program will continue to grow your tourism economy. Please restore funding for tourism in your budget! Tourism is never an expense; it is an investment which pays rich dividends.

Sincerely,

Karen P. Hackett

LCHS GRADUATION

From A1

“Oxford Dictionaries describes the word unique as ‘being the only one of its kind; unlike anything else.’ Doesn’t that have a better ring to it now?” he asked. “Knowing that we have been able to stand out in the crowd, together as a class. If that doesn’t make you sit a little straighter in your seat, I don’t know what else would. When I look out right now, I don’t just see a crowd in robes; I see my fellow classmates, my friends sitting there, and those who made an impact on my life thus far.”

Before leaving the speaker’s podium, Hall had a few words of advice for his fellow graduates as they leave high school and continue on with their lives.

“Always look forward, value what is important to you, and live life to the best of your abilities,” he said. “Now go out here and show off to the world how unique this class truly is, and never forget where it all began – here at LCHS.”

In his one final act as class president, Hall stepped to the side of the stage to take a selfie with Gentry Blair Lewis and Maggie Elizabeth Taylor, and the rest of the senior class.

Lewis and Taylor were on the dais with Hall as co-valedictorians, and as guest speakers. As is typical of the inseparable life-long friends, the co-valedictorians gave a co-speech, taking turns at the microphone while presenting their speech.

“Congratulations!” Lewis and Taylor said in unison. “Today is your day. You’re off to great places. You’re off and away.”

The senior valedictorians took time during their speech to touch on the lows of their high school experience at LCHS and their growth.

“Throughout our years at LCHS, the class of 2014 has suffered through our fair share of bang-ups and hang-ups,” Taylor said. “During our sophomore year, we were identified as a persistently low-achieving school, which means we placed in the bottom 10% of test scores for Kentucky high schools ... realizing that the state would be coming into our school, we were suddenly kicked into high gear and began to make our own changes for the betterment of the school as a whole.”

“We faced the state audit by uniting to stand behind our principal and forming ‘Team Godbey,’” interjected Lewis. “We also survived Red Zone, changes in the cafeteria food, and the shift from trimester to semester scheduling in school from the bottom to the top. Our class served as the guinea pigs for many projects administered by the school to help us reach new academic heights and prepare us for the rest of the world after high school.”

Lewis and Taylor also boasted proudly of the class highs.

“Our status as a school dramatically improved, and it would not have been possible without the hard work of our class,” stated Taylor. “We have the highest ACT class average that LCHS has ever seen, like ever, which is more than enough to be proud of. Our test scores improved and as a result we are now in the 83rd percentile and claim a proficient rating.”

Just as they did as a class, Lewis and Taylor expect the 2014 graduates to succeed as they enter the next phase of their lives.

“And will you succeed? Yes! You will, indeed!” Lewis said. “You will find your place in the world. Take all the things you learned at LCHS to life after high school, whether it be college, the armed forces, technical school or the workforce. Although we won’t all be together again after today, we can’t forget what this school has done for us. No matter where you may end up, remember

Brass band fever comes to Stanford

Olde Towne Brass, a brass quintet with drums from Huntsville, Alabama, performed Friday evening in downtown Stanford as part of Danville's Great American Brass Band Festival.

Old Towne Brass performs with "over-the-shoulder Sax horns" that were made prior to 1866 and plays music from the U.S. Civil War era, in an effort to recreate the exact brass sounds that soldiers marching during the war would have heard.

This was Old Towne Brass' ninth visit to the festival. The band has been around since the 1980s.

Fort Logan celebrates 52 graduates with inspirational, emotional ceremony

By Ben Kleppinger
ben@theinteriorjournal.com

STANFORD — “My strength is being happy and determined to succeed by overcoming all odds.”

Those words from Josiah McGirr, shared as one of many inspirational statements from Fort Logan High School Graduates at their graduation Friday, brought everyone in the Stuart Underwood Auditorium to their feet in a standing ovation.

Keynote speaker Jim Ward had to wait for a full 30 seconds before the cheers died down enough to continue.

“If you don’t know Josiah McGirr, you need to get to know him,” Ward said, turning to McGirr, who was seated among his fellow graduates. “He is going to be successful at whatever he does. Anything. It doesn’t matter, does it buddy?”

McGirr was a senior at Fort Logan in 2011 when he wrecked a car along Moore’s Lane, overcorrecting after running off the road and slamming the driver’s side of the vehicle into a tree.

McGirr was cut from the vehicle by emergency responders and taken to the hospital, but he suffered a traumatic brain injury that left him with a 10-percent chance of surviving, McGirr’s mom, Jennifer Hale said after Friday’s ceremony.

McGirr wound up in a coma for three months. Most people who suffer the type of brain injury McGirr suffered are usually left in a “vegetative state,” Hale said.

But McGirr woke up from his coma and began going through physical therapy at medical facilities and at school. He was in a wheelchair for six weeks, used a walker for about a year and walked with a cane for another six months, Hale said.

“We didn’t think he would ever graduate,” she said. “He was supposed to graduate the year he wrecked.”

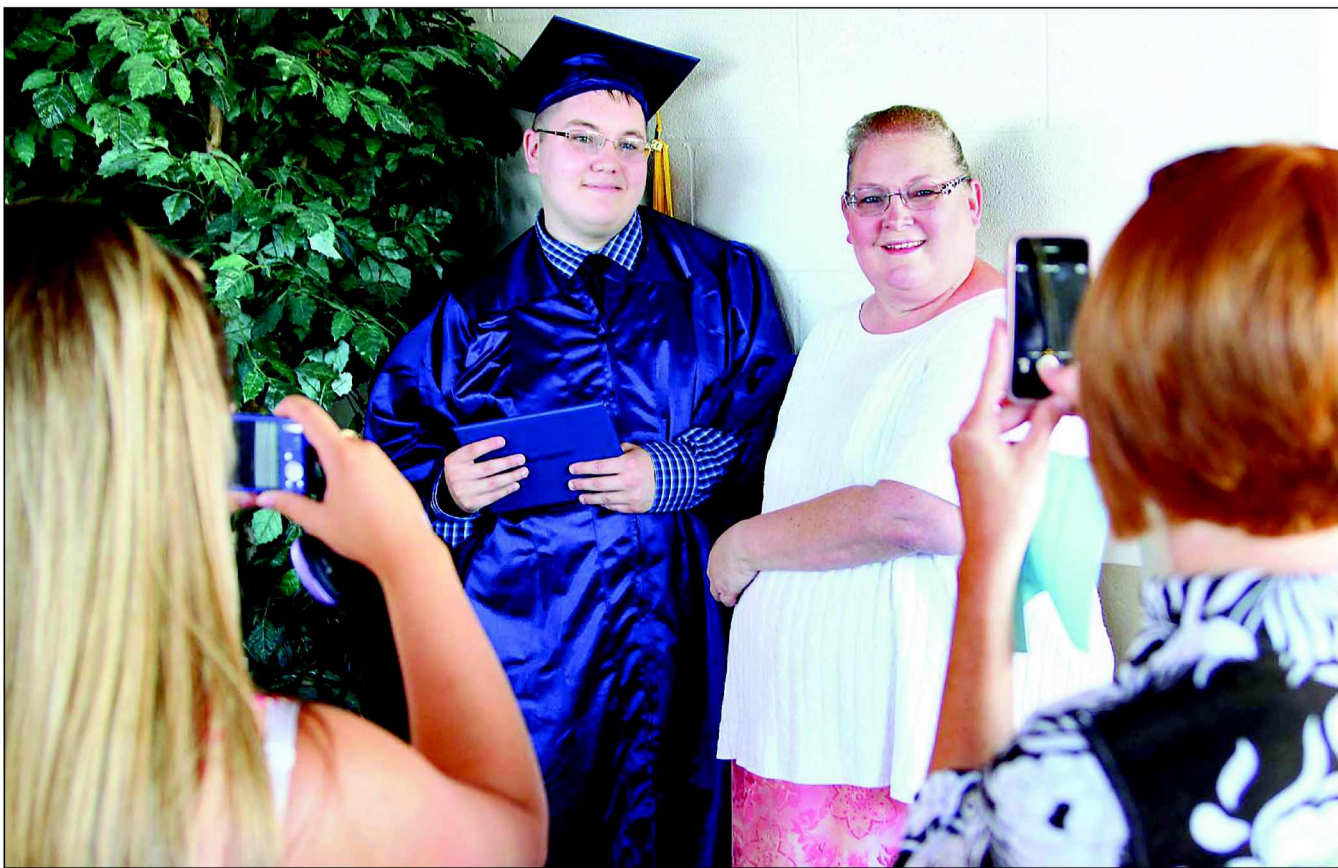

McGirr walked unassisted across the auditorium stage with his fellow graduates — 52 graduated in all — to receive his diploma Friday.

For Ward, the school district’s curriculum coordinator, McGirr’s successful recovery was one of many inspirational moments and thoughts that he shared with the graduates and their family and friends during his speech.

Ward told the students they were similar to the infamous 17-year cicadas, which remain underground and “under the radar” for close to two decades before emerging to become “kings.”

Ward told graduates they should start climbing — like cicadas do after they emerge — by utilizing their skills and talents. Fear is one of the greatest enemies they will face as they begin adult life, he warned.

“You can be your greatest predator, because what you can do is you can talk to yourself about, ‘I can’t do it.’ You can give yourself negative talk,” he said. “... Don’t allow yourself to buy in to the idea of fear.”

Ward told students they should always try for things like job opportunities, rather than caving in to the fear of failing.

“You’re definitely not going to get (the job) if you don’t go,” he said. “If you’re waiting for someone to come and hand it to you, it won’t happen. You’ve got to go get it.”

Class speakers Robert Devin Norman and Elizabeth McLemore spoke after Ward, voicing their thankfulness to the teachers, administrators and community members in the audience who had helped them and their fellow graduates reach such an important milestone.

Norman said among those who helped him make it is his grandmother.

“She made me come to school when I didn’t want to,” he said. “I would not be graduating without her.”

Former Patriots Hooper, Johnson to play football for Campbellsville Tigers

By Nancy Leedy
STANFORD — Nate Hooper and Joe Johnson developed a friendship when Johnson joined the Lincoln County High School football team after his sophomore year. And that friendship grew over the past two seasons as the two played on the line together.

While their time in the Patriot red, white and blue has ended, the duo has guaranteed at least four more years together in the same uniform, with Hooper and Johnson both signing a letter of intent to play football for Campbellsville University.

Hooper and Johnson made their college choice official in a dual ceremony at LCHS, with Johnson stating that “together” was how they wanted to proceed after high school graduation.

“We were kind of like a package deal,” he said. “Me and him got to be good friends and, after playing next to each other all last year on the line, we decided we wanted to go to the same college. We wanted to continue to play together.”

“We knew we wanted to go somewhere that we could both play together, but if we hadn’t found a place where we could play together, we had already decided that we were going to go to ECU,” Hooper said. “We kind of thought about it for a while and we both liked Campbellsville.”

Hooper said that the two athletes had looked at or been looked at by several colleges, including the University of the Cumberlands, University of Pikeville, Lindsey Wilson College and Denison University (Ohio) while making their college choice.

“I’m excited to get to play for Campbellsville,” said Hooper. “Me and Joe both went on visits together and that’s the place we liked the most. I liked all the coaches, and the players up there are really nice and stuff. And the campus is really cool.”

The Taylor County campus and the strength of the football program helped draw Johnson in.

“I just fell in love with the good Christian atmosphere,” he said. “The campus is beautiful and the football program is really good. We liked it a lot.”

Johnson said the school’s recruiting coordinator Matt Atwood had a lot to do with the final decision.

“We were interested in it, but we were honestly thinking maybe we would just go to Eastern and room together and not play football,” he said. “Then we decided to go on a visit together just to look. (Atwood) took us on a tour, and talked to us about the program. He talked us into it. He’s really good at his job.”

Hooper, 6-0, 205 pounds, who played offensive line and linebacker at Lincoln, and Johnson, 6-2, 235 pounds, who played on both the offensive and defensive lines, are joining a program that is coming off a 4-6 season. The Tigers’ losses included five to teams that finished in the NAIA’s Top 26. Two of those losses were by less than a touchdown.

LCHS tennis courts getting facelift

HENRY BAUGHMAN, who along with his brother, Jim Baughman, helped set the plans in motion for the resurfacing of the Lincoln County High School tennis courts, watches as Larry Carrier of McGlone Construction maneuvers the asphalt roller on the first section of the new surface on the lower courts. The Harrodsburg construction firm resurfaced all four courts on Monday and Tuesday. It will be two weeks before the courts are ready for use.

By Nancy Leedy
STANFORD — Lincoln County High School doesn’t get talked about much by people looking for good tennis courts.

Maybe it has something to do with the quality of the school’s courts. Cracks have been an off-and-on problem since the construction of the courts in the late 1970s, weeds get in the way of play, poor drainage has damaged some court surfaces and the lighting is not always sufficient.

However, there is some good news for the LCHS tennis teams and local fans of the sport: the courts are getting a facelift that will not only give the tennis teams a facility they can be proud of but also a great place for the community’s residents to enjoy the sport.

The court area at LCHS was a hotbed of activity Monday and Tuesday as McGlone Construction of Harrodsburg handled the resurfacing of the school’s four courts.

Curious onlookers stopped by occasionally to see what all the commotion was about. One of the more frequent visitors was Allen Lewis, the tennis coach at Lincoln.

“This is going to be awesome,” Lewis said as he watched the McGlone crews at work. “I don’t know when the last time was that it was resurfaced, Campbellsville, under coach Perry Thomas, finished the season third in the Mid-South Conference West Division standings. “They’re getting better,” Hooper said of his new team. “They improved last year and they signed more players than any college I know this year. They signed about a hundred or something so I think they are going to be a lot better this (upcoming) year.” Hooper, who plans to pursue a degree in criminal justice, says he being looked at to play tight end and full-back and sees potential to play his freshman season. “They made it sound good, that I could play some varsity as a freshman,” he said.

Johnson, who plans to major in economics, says he will be playing on the offensive line, but that he expects his freshman year to be mostly a period of learning. “We’ll mainly just be learning the schemes and the playbook our freshman year,” he said. “If we’re lucky maybe we can get on some special teams.” Besides their studies, football is all Hooper and

Johnson will be concentrating on at Campbellsville, leaving cheerleading and tennis in their past. “Tennis was just a high school thing,” said Johnson. “There are a few football players at Campbellsville that cheerlead, but I’m just going to do football,” said Hooper. Both former Lincoln players are already under the guidance of their new coach, with Thomas sending both a workout program to carry them into pre-season practices. A short summer is all that separates the two recent LCHS graduates from the opening day of football practice, and the two face their future with mixed emotions. “I think I’ll be alright,” said Hooper. “Sometimes I am ready to make the next step, but sometimes I’m a little nervous, being away from the family and everything.” “I’m so excited and just a little anxious about it,” Johnson said. “I’m ready to get there. It’s a whole new game and it’s going to be fun.” Hooper is the son of Cheryl Hooper and Sam Hooper of Stanford and Johnson is the son of Bill and Linda Johnson, also of Stanford.

Fish and Wildlife Commission proposes early migratory bird seasons

FRANKFORT, Ky. — The Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Commission recommended 2014-2015 early migratory bird season dates and a lengthening of the dove seasons. All recommendations must be approved by legislators before they become law. Proposed early migratory bird seasons include: Mourning Dove: Sept. 1 – Oct. 26; Nov. 27 – Dec. 7; Dec. 20, 2014 – Jan. 11, 2015 September Canada Goose: Sept. 1 – 15 Wood Duck and Teal: Sept. 17 – 21 American Woodcock: Nov. 1 – Dec. 15 Virginia and Sora Rail, Common Moorhen and Purple Gallinule: Sept. 1 – Nov. 9 Common Snipe: Sept. 17 – Oct. 26; Nov. 27, 2014 – Feb. 1, 2015 Sandhill Crane: Dec. 13, 2014 – Jan. 11, 2015 Other recommendations approved by commissioners at their quarterly meeting today included: An additional 20 days of dove season for 2014-2015; daily bag limit for the September Canada goose season increased from three to five birds; and daily bag limit for teal increased from four to six birds during the combined wood duck and teal season. In other wildlife-related business, the commission proposed several changes for the 2015 wild turkey seasons. These include allowing hunters to use .410-gauge shotguns during any open turkey season, a smaller gauge that is friendlier for youth than is currently allowed. Commission members also voted to allow archery and crossbow hunters to take four bird fall turkey season bag limit during any fall season for turkeys, beginning in 2015. Currently, archery and crossbow turkey hunters must take two of their four bird fall season bag limit during the fall firearm turkey season. In trapping-related business, the commission recommended removing the 10-foot spacing requirement for traps on private land. The 10-foot spacing requirement remains on public land. They also recommended restricting the use of body-gripping traps on lands owned or managed by Kentucky Fish and Wildlife to 110-type traps for land sets. They also proposed establishing a standard means of registering trappers on wildlife management areas (WMAs) to avoid user conflicts. Trappers are exempt from hunter orange clothing requirements. Upon receipt of the tag, CITES tags must be immediately attached to bobcats or river otters. These two species must be telechecked before leaving Kentucky. These regulations begin in March 2015.

MCGLONE'S CONSTRUCTION of Harrodsburg lays asphalt on the lower tennis courts at Lincoln County High School Monday. The construction crew completed the resurfacing of the facility's four courts over Monday and Tuesday.

if ever. We're ecstatic that it's finally getting done and that we'll be able to play on these nice courts."

Lewis said he, the girls and boys tennis teams and Lincoln County High School have many people to thank for the newly-resurfaced courts, but that two people are especially high on the thank-you list – Stanford brothers Jim Baughman and Henry Baughman.

"It's a community effort with the (Lincoln County) Fiscal Court donating money and the school board donating money, but it really goes to Mr. (Jim) Baughman. He's really the catalyst that got it all going and he and his brother, Henry Baughman, have been the two keys in donating money and seeing that it got going," said Lewis.

The Baughmans are proof that tennis is a lifetime sport. They won several regional titles both in singles and in doubles while at Stanford High School about 60 years ago and the two continue to play competitively, with Henry ranked No. 1 in Kentucky in 70 & Over and 75 & Over singles and he and Jim ranked No. 1 in the same age divisions in doubles.

Lewis gives credit to the Baughmans for getting the courts resurfaced, but Jim Baughman says it is all about community.

"It's significantly a community effort," Baughman said. "Daryl Day was primary liaison with the Fiscal Court and school board and Henry and me, and then we had help from Jimbo (Adams) and Bo Gander, Short (Saufley) from Builder's Supply, Ewing (Hart) at Hart Insurance, P.D. Roller and his maintenance crew and Allen Lewis the tennis coach."

"The project is illustrative of what can happen when the community pitches in and works together," he said. "I think it's been 36 years since the courts were built, and this is the first time that they've had a new topping put on. Hopefully, it will build up interest in tennis in the community and more people will start playing."

The resurfacing of the courts has been a long time coming. Baughman and Lewis had anticipated seeing the court facelift completed almost a year ago before financial problems put the project on the backburner.

"It was originally supposed to happen last fall, but the company that won the bid to do it went out of business," Lewis said. "It was too late when we found out to do anything, so we had to regroup and do it at the end of this school year."

Baughman didn't find out about the company's closing until he called to set up the start date for the project.

"I called the guy and said, 'Okay, you're going to start Monday like we agreed,' and he said, 'You know, I've been meaning to call you. We're going out of business.' So I had to start all over."

Original bids for the project for July of 2013 had reached as high as $75,000. The cost of the current project is less than $53,000, thanks to strong negotiations and volunteer labor.

"I had to get other people to try to match his price (original winning bid)," Baughman said. "They wanted $4,000 to take the fence down so I said, 'We'll take the fence down and put it back.' Then they wanted $200 apiece for new nets and I said, 'We don't need new nets.' So we negotiated stuff out that we didn't have to have, and with volunteer labor, we got it down to $52,000-53,000. The Fiscal Court is buying the blacktop, the road department is doing the ditch to keep water from going under the courts, P.D. Roller had a couple people here this morning helping to put the fence back and Smith Electric came out and put in all new bulbs."

Baughman said it will take two weeks to complete the project. After the asphalt work is completed, four coats of paint will be put on the courts before they are lined and the nets put back in place.

The once green courts will now be "Wildcat blue," maybe a nod to the University of Kentucky where Baughman played tennis.

"Could be," Baughman said with a laugh. "It's blue on the courts. It will be red on the edges with white lines. The school colors are red, white and blue so all the colors are there."

Work is yet to be done before the project is complete, however, Lewis said that hasn't stopped members of the tennis teams from stopping by to check the progress.

"They are excited about it and extremely happy," said

Lewis. "We got matching scorecards last year, first time had that in a long time, and now we're going to have nice new courts and a backboard. It's going to look like a new place down here."

A new addition is being made to the courts during the renovation, with a tennis backboard installed for individual practices. Backboards allow players to simulate real groundstrokes and returns, so they can develop proper form and technique.

"The backboard ... is going to be a great help in teaching the kids in all the different levels," said Lewis. "Like Mr. Baughman (Jim) said, 'If we have a kid that can beat the backboard, he's going to win a lot of matches.'"

While Baughman regretted not seeing the courts resurfaced in time for three-time regional champion Colin Hart to play on them, he is happy to have the project underway.

"It's good for the school and it's good for the community," he said. "It's looking great. We hope that it gets a lot of use and builds interest in tennis."

FARM FACTS

By Dan Grigson
Lincoln County Extension Office

Preventing hay fires

Hay bale or barn fires can be prevented if farmers bale hay at appropriate moistures and monitor the temperature of recently baled hay. Generally, hay will go through a heating phase within one to two weeks after baling. During this time, hay should be monitored to ensure it does not reach temperatures that can damage the hay or lead to spontaneous combustion.

It is not unusual for the temperature within a bale of hay to reach 100 degrees Fahrenheit, and may go as high as 130 degrees before beginning to decline. If the temperature peaks below 130 degrees, there may be some loss of quality but no danger of fire. With free air circulation around a bale, both heat and moisture can dissipate. A single bale rarely heats enough to catch on fire, but when they are placed close together or stacked with other bales that are also heating, it is much more difficult for the heat to leave the bales. A good practice is to leave bales scattered in the barn for three to four weeks before placing them in a stack or leave them outside for four weeks then move them inside.

If the bales are wetter than they should be, the temperatures can easily rise above 130 degrees. At 140 to 150 degrees more microbial growth and chemical reactions within the hay cause it to generate heat at an increasingly rapid rate.

If hay temperatures reach 150 degrees, bales need to be moved to allow for better air circulation and the temperature should be checked frequently. At 180 degrees fire is imminent and the fire department should be notified. It is best to wait for them to arrive before removing the hay from the stack in case of a flame up. To check the temperature of hay, several types of thermometers can be used. Find one that is durable and easy to use and will measure up to 200 degrees. Electronic thermometers with remote sensors and a digital readout can be used. Avoid LED displays because they are often hard to read in bright light. An LCD is a better choice. For farmers who are also moisture testing their hay, some of the electronic moisture meters also measures temperature. Long stem thermometers, commonly called compost thermometers, are probably the most rugged, cheapest and reliable. With these types, the price increases with the dial size and length of the stem. We have some of these available for you to borrow to check your hay temperature, then if you like, we can help you get one purchased.

When using a thermometer, measure the wettest hay first. Probe square bales from the side and round from the end. The probe should be inserted near the center of the bale. In round bales, if the core is loosely formed, probe six to 12 inches away from the center where the hay will be more tightly packed. In large stacks, it may be difficult to reach the center, but it is important to get at least five to 10 feet down from the top or in from the side. The most critical factor is to reach where the wettest hay is stored. It is best to probe at several locations and at different depths within a stack to locate the warmest spot.

For more information on temperature checking and other aspects of hay production and storage contact me at the Lincoln County U.K. Cooperative Extension Service Office. 365-2447.

FSA County Committee nomination period begins June 15

The nomination period for local Farm Service Agency (FSA) county committees begins Sunday, June 15, 2014.

To be eligible to serve on an FSA county committee, a person must participate or cooperate in a program administered by FSA, be eligible to vote in a county committee election and reside in the local administrative area where the person is nominated.

Farmers and ranchers may nominate themselves or others. Organizations representing minorities and women also may nominate candidates. To become a candidate, an eligible individual must sign the nomination form, FSA-669A. The form and other information about FSA county committee elections are available at www.fsa.usda.gov/elections. Nomination forms for the 2014 election must be postmarked or received in the local USDA Service Center by close of business on Aug. 1, 2014. Elections will take place this fall.

While FSA county committees do not approve or deny farm ownership or operating loans, they make decisions on disaster and conservation programs, emergency programs, commodity price support loan programs and other agricultural issues. Members serve three-year terms. Nationwide, there are about 7,800 farmers and ranchers serving on FSA county committees. Committees consist of three to 11 members that are elected by eligible producers.

FSA will mail ballots to eligible voters beginning Nov. 3, 2014. Ballots are due back to the local county office either via mail or in person by Dec. 1, 2014. Newly elected committee members and alternates take office on Jan. 1, 2015.

The Stanford FSA Committee consists of five members, with each member representing a particular area/community of Lincoln and Garrard counties. This year, our election will take place in Local Administrative Areas (LAA) 1 and 4. LAA 1 includes all farmland in Lincoln County that is North of Highways 150 and

78. Some the of communities this includes are: Hubble, Moreland, Logantown, Gilberts Creek, Knob Lick, Milledgville, and parts of Hustonville, Crab Orchard, and Stanford. This position is currently held by James R. Cooper.

LAA 4 includes all farmland in Garrard County that is North of US Highway 52. This includes the communities of Bryantsville, Buckeye, Buena Vista, Davistown, Hackley, Teatersville, Three Forks, and areas of Hyattsville, Point Leavell, and Lancaster. This position is currently held by Billy C. Doolin, Jr.

career paths in the fields of math, science, and technology," said Delaney Stephens, community liaison and youth programs coordinator for The Center. "The program also encourages creative thinking and teamwork and builds leadership skills as the region's next generation of leaders and entrepreneurs."

Reed, son of David and Jennifer Campbell of Stanford, and Roby, son of Ricky and Kelly Mullins of Lancaster, attend Lincoln County Middle School. Tevin, son of Don and Gina Leigh of Stanford, is a student at Boyle County Middle School.

Rogers Explorers is presented by The Center for Rural Development in partnership with Lindsey Wilson College, University of the Cumberlands, Eastern Kentucky University, Morehead State University, and the newest host site, Asbury University.

Students spend three days and two nights on the campuses of one of these Kentucky colleges or universities. Fort Logan uses ReSure Sealant in cataract surgeries

Ephraim McDowell Fort Logan Hospital (EMFLH) announced it successfully used the ReSure Sealant, the first and only FDA-approved sealant, for ophthalmic use in sealing clear corneal incisions following cataract surgery.

Dr. Gary Wortz, an ophthalmic surgeon with an office in Stanford, performed the first three surgeries in the state of Kentucky utilizing this new medical device.

In the U.S. pivotal clinical trial, it proved to be more effective than sutures in preventing fluid egress in the immediate post-operative phase when wounds are most vulnerable to leakage and other post-operative complications. The sealant is prepared and applied in approximately 20 seconds and gels in place. Composed of a synthetic, polyethylene glycol hydrogel (PEG), the product is approximately 90 percent water. It contains a blue visualization aid to assist with ease of placement over the incision, which dissipates within hours of application. The hydrogel is comfortable for the patient, and gradually comes off in the tears as the wound heals. As a result, there is no need for removal of the device, which is often required with sutures.

Dr. Wortz has participated in a number of FDA Clinical Trials and is currently in other studies with the ReSure Sealant manufacturer, Ocular Therapeutix, Bedford, MA.

“The ReSure Sealant definitely offers a better alternative for patients in the future, totally sealing their cataract surgery incisions,” says Dr. Wortz. “Although we always leave the wound in a stable state, patients who rub their eye or bump their eye while putting in drops have the potential to alter the stability. Until the ReSure Sealant was approved, there has been no way to totally seal the wound. This is a welcome addition to our surgical resources, as we are always trying to improve patient safety and outcomes.”

Helmets and motorcycle safety

By James A. Turpin, M.D.

With rising gas prices, motorcycles have become a popular form of transportation. Unfortunately, this rise in usage has also led to a rise in fatalities, as motorcycle deaths have increased by 55 percent since 2000. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) estimates that, per vehicle mile traveled, motorcyclists were about 35 times more likely than passenger car occupants to die in a traffic crash.

Fortunately, motorcycle riders can protect themselves by wearing helmets. Head injury is the leading cause of death in motorcycle crashes, and helmets provide the best protection from head injuries while also reducing the likelihood of death in traffic crashes. Surprisingly, only 21 states require motorcyclists and their passengers to wear helmets.

The Center for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) reports that wearing a helmet can increase crash survival by 37 percent. Motorcycle helmets are 67 percent effective in preventing brain injuries, which often result in lifelong disability.

Wearing a helmet while riding a motorcycle should be an easy decision. Nationally, in 2006 alone, helmets saved the lives of 1,658 motorcyclists, and an additional 752 lives could have been saved if all motorcyclists had worn helmets in that year.

Making sure you wear a helmet approved by the Department of Transportation can allow you to enjoy riding your motorcycle in a safer and more effective fashion.

Dr. James A. Turpin is medical director of Ephraim McDowell Fort Logan Hospital’s Emergency Department.

Water Quality Report for year 2013

Stanford, Kentucky 40484

Meetings: Stanford Water& Sewer

Meeting Dates and Time: 1st Tuesday of Month 10:00am

Water - Essential for Life

This report is designed to inform the public about the quality of water and services provided on a daily basis. Our commitment is to provide our customers with a safe, clean, and reliable supply of drinking water. We want to assure that we will continue to monitor, improve, and protect the water system and deliver a high quality product. Water is the most indispensable product in every home and we ask everyone to be conservative and help us in our efforts to protect the water source and the water system.

Our source is surface water from Henry Rice Reservoir, supplemented by James Harris Reservoir. An analysis of the susceptibility of the Stanford Water Supply to contamination indicates that the susceptibility is generally moderate. However, there are a few areas of high concern. The Henry Rice Reservoir has been identified as impaired by the KY Division of Water. The cause of impairment is described as " Nutrients / low dissolved oxygen ". The presence of an impaired water may indicate that environmental conditions detrimental to source water quality already exists within the watershed. Forested areas within the watershed may contribute to elevated levels of organic material in the reservoir or these areas may also introduce the potential for logging. Forested areas around the James Harris Reservoir are also of high concern. If logging were to take place in this watershed, the intake could be at risk of contamination. A copy of this report can be viewed at the water office upon request.

Drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects may be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency's Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

The sources of drinking water (both tap water and bottled water) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs, and wells. As water travels over the surface of the land or through the ground, it dissolves naturally occurring minerals and, in some cases, radioactive material, and may pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or from human activity. Contaminants that may be present in source water include: Microbial contaminants, such as viruses and bacteria, (sewage plants, septic systems, livestock operations, or wildlife). Inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals, (naturally occurring or from stormwater runoff, wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, mining, or farming). Pesticides and herbicides, (stormwater runoff, agriculture or residential uses). Organic chemical contaminants, including synthetic and volatile organic chemicals, (by-products of industrial processes and petroleum production, or from gas stations, stormwater runoff, or septic systems). Radioactive contaminants, (naturally occurring or from oil and gas production or mining activities).

In order to ensure that tap water is safe to drink, EPA prescribes regulations that limit the amount of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems. FDA regulations establish limits for contaminants in bottled water to provide the same protection for public health.

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by Cryptosporidium and other microbial contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

Some or all of these definitions may be found in this report:

Maximum Contaminant Level (MCL) - the highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.

Maximum Contaminant Level Goal (MCLG) - the level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.

Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level (MRDL) - the highest level of a disinfectant allowed in drinking water. There is convincing evidence that addition of a disinfectant is necessary for control of microbial contaminants.

Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level Goal (MRDLG) - the level of a drinking water disinfectant below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MRDLGs do not reflect the benefits of the use of disinfectants to control microbial contaminants.

Below Detection Levels (BDL) - laboratory analysis indicates that the contaminant is not present.

Not Applicable (N/A) - does not apply.

Parts per million (ppm) - or milligrams per liter, (mg/l). One part per million corresponds to one minute in two years or a single penny in $10,000.

Parts per billion (ppb) - or micrograms per liter, (µg/L). One part per billion corresponds to one minute in 2,000 years, or a single penny in $10,000,000.

Parts per trillion (ppt) - one part per trillion corresponds to one minute in 2,000,000 years, or a single penny in $10,000,000,000.

Parts per quadrillion (ppq) - one part per quadrillion corresponds to one minute in 2,000,000,000 years or one penny in $10,000,000,000,000.

Picocuries per liter (pCi/L) - a measure of the radioactivity in water.

Millirems per year (mrem/yr) - measure of radiation absorbed by the body.

Million Fibers per Liter (MFL) - a measure of the presence of asbestos fibers that are longer than 10 micrometers.

Nephelometric Turbidity Unit (NTU) - a measure of the clarity of water. Turbidity has no health effects. However, turbidity can provide a medium for microbial growth. Turbidity is monitored because it is a good indicator of the effectiveness of the filtration system.

Variances & Exemptions (V&E) - State or EPA permission not to meet an MCL or a treatment technique under certain conditions.

Action Level (AL) - the concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements that a water system shall follow.

Treatment Technique (TT) - a required process intended to reduce the level of a contaminant in drinking water.

Information About Lead:

If present, elevated levels of lead can cause serious health problems, especially for pregnant women and young children. Lead in drinking water is primarily from materials and components associated with service lines and home plumbing. Your local public water system is responsible for providing high quality drinking water, but cannot control the variety of materials used in plumbing components. When your water has been sitting for several hours, you can minimize the potential for lead exposure by flushing your tap for 30 seconds to 2 minutes before using water for drinking or cooking. If you are concerned about lead in your water, you may wish to have your water tested. Information on lead in drinking water, testing methods, and steps you can take to minimize exposure is available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline or at <http://www.epa.gov/safewater/lead>.

Spanish (Español) Este informe contiene información muy importante sobre la calidad de su agua beber. Tradúzcalo o hable con alguien que lo entienda bien.

The data presented in this report are from the most recent testing done in accordance with administrative regulations in 401 KAR Chapter 8. As authorized and approved by EPA, the State has reduced monitoring requirements for certain contaminants to less often than once per year because the concentrations of these contaminants are not expected to vary significantly from year to year. Some of the data in this table, though representative, may be more than one year old. Unless otherwise noted, the report level is the highest level detected.

EPA has not established drinking water standards for unregulated contaminants. There are no MCL's and therefore no violations if found.

The Lead exceedance was discovered in our routine testing of December 2013. The City of Stanford Waterworks has started a corrosion inhibitor program which will help in reducing the corrosiveness of the source water.

Lead. Infants and children who drink water containing lead in excess of the action level could experience delays in their physical or mental development. Children could show slight deficits in attention span and learning abilities. Adults who drink this water over many years could develop kidney problems or high blood pressure.

Secondary contaminants do not have a direct impact on the health of consumers and are not required in the Consumer Confidence Report. They are being included to provide additional information about the quality of the water.

MONEY TIP Protect yourself against identity theft

Students under age 18 are often targeted for identity theft because they frequently have no reason to check their credit scores. Here are several ways to protect yourself, according to the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA).

- Never provide personal information such as your Social Security number, bank account or credit card numbers in response to a phone call, fax, letter or email. Don't respond to emails that claim to be from the Internal Revenue Service (IRS). The IRS doesn't contact taxpayers by email. Nor does the IRS threaten to send local police to arrest you, as a popular phone scam claims.

- Friends, family members, roommates and workers in homes make up a large percentage of identity thieves because they have access to your information. Make sure you don't leave personal information where they can see it. Shred any documents that contain personal or financial information.

- Pick up your mail as soon as possible after delivery or use a locked mailbox. Put outgoing mail in a blue Postal Service mailbox, hand it to a mail carrier or take it to the post office.

This report is designed to inform the public about the quality of water and services provided on a daily basis. Our commitment is to provide our customers with a safe, clean, and reliable supply of drinking water. We want to assure that we will continue to monitor, improve, and protect the water system and deliver a high quality product. Water is the most indispensable product in every home and we ask everyone to be conservative and help us in our efforts to protect the water source and the water system.

The McKinney Water District (A=in table pwsidKY0690278) purchases water from two surface water sources, the first being the City of Eubank (B= in tablepwsidKY1000124) by way of the City of Somerset. The Ottenheim community is served by water purchased from Eubank Water System and the remainder of McKinney Water District is served by water purchased from the City of Stanford (C= in table pwsidKY0690417). The City of Stanford treats surface water from Rice Lake. The susceptibility of the Lake Cumberland Reservoir water source to contamination indicates that this susceptibility is low. And the susceptibility of the Stanford water supply to contamination susceptibility is generally moderate. Some sources of contamination are roads and bridges, agricultural activities like farming and logging. Human activities such as recreational lake use, mining, drilling are also areas of concern within our watersheds. Full copies of the source water assessments are available at the, Lake Cumberland Area Development District, 2384 Lakeway Dr., Post Office Box 1570, Russell Springs, KY 42642, Phone: (270) 866-4200.

Drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects may be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency's Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

The sources of drinking water (both tap water and bottled water) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs, and wells. As water travels over the surface of the land or through the ground, it dissolves naturally occurring minerals and, in some cases, radioactive material, and may pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or from human activity. Contaminants that may be present in source water include: Microbial contaminants, such as viruses and bacteria, (sewage plants, septic systems, livestock operations, or wildlife). Inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals, (naturally occurring or from stormwater runoff, wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, mining, or farming). Pesticides and herbicides, (stormwater runoff, agriculture or residential uses). Organic chemical contaminants, including synthetic and volatile organic chemicals, (by-products of industrial processes and petroleum production, or from gas stations, stormwater runoff, or septic systems). Radioactive contaminants, (naturally occurring or from oil and gas production or mining activities).

In order to ensure that tap water is safe to drink, EPA prescribes regulations that limit the amount of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems. FDA regulations establish limits for contaminants in bottled water to provide the same protection for public health.

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by Cryptosporidium and other microbial contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

Some or all of these definitions may be found in this report:

Maximum Contaminant Level (MCL) - the highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.

Maximum Contaminant Level Goal (MCLG) - the level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.

Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level (MRDL) - the highest level of a disinfectant allowed in drinking water. There is convincing evidence that addition of a disinfectant is necessary for control of microbial contaminants.

Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level Goal (MRDLG) - the level of a drinking water disinfectant below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MRDLGs do not reflect the benefits of the use of disinfectants to control microbial contaminants.

Below Detection Levels (BDL) - laboratory analysis indicates that the contaminant is not present.

Not Applicable (N/A) - does not apply.

Parts per million (ppm) - or milligrams per liter, (mg/l). One part per million corresponds to one minute in two years or a single penny in $10,000.

Parts per billion (ppb) - or micrograms per liter, (µg/L). One part per billion corresponds to one minute in 2,000 years, or a single penny in $10,000,000.

Parts per trillion (ppt) - one part per trillion corresponds to one minute in 2,000,000 years, or a single penny in $10,000,000,000.

Parts per quadrillion (ppq) - one part per quadrillion corresponds to one minute in 2,000,000,000 years or one penny in $10,000,000,000,000.

Picocuries per liter (pCi/L) - a measure of the radioactivity in water.

Millirems per year (mrem/yr) - measure of radiation absorbed by the body.

Million Fibers per Liter (MFL) - a measure of the presence of asbestos fibers that are longer than 10 micrometers.

Nephelometric Turbidity Unit (NTU) - a measure of the clarity of water. Turbidity has no health effects. However, turbidity can provide a medium for microbial growth. Turbidity is monitored because it is a good indicator of the effectiveness of the filtration system.

Variances & Exemptions (V&E) - State or EPA permission not to meet an MCL or a treatment technique under certain conditions.

Action Level (AL) - the concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements that a water system shall follow.

Treatment Technique (TT) - a required process intended to reduce the level of a contaminant in drinking water.

Spanish (Español) Este informe contiene información muy importante sobre la calidad de su agua beber. Tradúzalo o hable con alguien que lo entienda bien.

The data presented in this report are from the most recent testing done in accordance with administrative regulations in 401 KAR Chapter 8. As authorized and approved by EPA, the State has reduced monitoring requirements for certain contaminants to less often than once per year because the concentrations of these contaminants are not expected to vary significantly from year to year. Some of the data in this table, though representative, may be more than one year old. Unless otherwise noted, the report level is the highest level detected.

Eight graduate from FCN course

Ephraim McDowell Health's Faith Community Nursing Program recently graduated eight nurses who are now credentialed as Faith Community Nurses. The nurses participated in a six day continuing education program for the Faith Community Nursing (FCN) Foundation course.

Ephraim McDowell's Faith Community Nursing service is a collaboration with nurses in faith communities throughout the region that help them create health ministries in their congregations. The education program is open to congregations of all faiths and sizes.

Faith Community Nursing and health ministries promote individual, family and community health in body, mind and spirit, addressing the healthcare needs of a congregation through intentional care of the spirit that addresses the wholeness of the person.

Faith Community Nurses

are registered nurses and people of faith trained to provide specific services such as congregational health assessments, education, advocacy and other services. They do not diagnose or treat illnesses, do not dispense medications and are not members of any clergy.

Their roles include:

- educating people about improving health, with an emphasis on wellness and prevention
- acting as health advocates
- serving as counselors, promoting an understanding of the relationship between faith and health
- acting as visitation advocates and volunteer coordinators

Ephraim McDowell Regional Medical Center began offering the FCN foundation course in 2008. The vision of Ephraim McDowell Health was to aid the churches of the region in their mission to preach, teach and heal. The Ephraim McDowell Health Care Foundation has been the leading source of grant funds for the FCN foundation course within the region and grants from the Margaret T. Stoeckenger Foundation have provided tuition assistance. The program has now graduated 87 Faith Community Nurses from six states (North Carolina, Ohio, Indiana, Virginia, Tennessee and Kentucky) and 23 counties within Kentucky.

For more information about the Faith Community Nursing Service, call Rosie Albright, RN, MSN, CNS-BC, ARNP, FCN, the Faith Community Nursing Coordinator for Ephraim McDowell Health at (859) 239-1603. Additional FCN educators from Ephraim McDowell Health are Terry Casey APRN, FCN; Ina Glass MSN RN, NEA-BC, FCN; Regina Rice, BSN, RN, FCN; and Audrey Powell, MSN, FCN, RN.

EMRMC named one of the 100 Great Community Hospitals

Ephraim McDowell Regional Medical Center (EMRMC) was recently named one of the 100 Great Community Hospitals in the U.S. by Becker's Hospital Review. The recognition is based upon quality and service the hospital provides to its community.

In order to be considered, hospitals must have fewer than 550 beds and can be in suburban or rural areas, though many recipients are rural and serve as the only hospital for their community. The review staff considered many other awards and recognitions, such as those from iVantage Health Analytics and the American Hospital Association, among others, when making their selections. EMRMC's inclusion came in part from its Joint Commission Top Performers on Key Quality Measures in 2013 status, and its recognition as one of the Best Hospitals for Patient Experience in Emergency Care by Women's Choice Award.
